List of Perfumes For The Pharaoh Innate Group

April 27, 2025

A list of perfumes for the Pharaoh innate group is based on our desire to show the relationship between certain scents and innate group, types, temperaments and even age of types. This list has been compiled and categorized by the authors of the World Typology website and theory. This

Perfumes were created by humans a long time ago, as many realized that by extracting natural scents – you can take a piece of nature with you. To some, perfumes seemed to help improve a person's well-being. Perfumes themselves are stronger than other perfumed odors, as the percentage of essential oils in them is greater. Toilet water and colognes are less strong and long-lasting because they contain less essential oils. But most importantly, different perfumes can have different scents that create different looks and atmospheres. That is why this was the motivation for us to create this typological classification.

Before you start exploring, we'd like you to know that we do not partner with or represent perfume brands. We do not sell their perfumes.

How did we do the perfume classification for the Pharaoh group?

In brief, we subjectively, with our experience and knowledge of typology, categorized perfumes into specific groups based on specific phenomena from our theory. Further, temperament (sanguine, choleric, phlegmatic and melancholic), group (8 innate groups) and theoretical types age (young, middle, old) were taken into account. We have not categorized perfumes by gender. You can find this information yourself on the manufacturers' website.
